The Swedes in Maine.

The following from Appleton's Journal is worthy of perusal: The value of the emigrant is clearly shown and the success of the system adopted in Maine is possible in any State which shall introduce it under intelligent direction: "In less than one year from the settlement of the first colony in the State, in July, 1870, it doubled in population, numbering at the close of the year more than fifty. At the commencement of the year 1871 the 'promised land,' now inhabited, contained one hundred and fourteen persons, having two hundred acres of land under cultivation, and twenty-six timber houses erected, besides a public building called the capitol. Continuing the encouragement of this class of immigration by the State, we see first nearly one thousand souls have come over the past year, giving a total addition to our population from this source of over one thousand inhabitants. Not only paying the expenses of their voyage, these immigrants have brought clothing, tools, household goods, and at least forty thousand dollars in money. As more than fifty per cent. of the Swedes are workmen, and, as the average value of a workman to the State is one thousand dollars, it will be seen that Maine has gained from this enterprise over five hundred thousand dollars. The money generously provided by the State assists the newly-arrived immigrant in his preliminary efforts to found a home, seed the ground, and gather in his first crop. After that, as it has been shown the past season, he can take care of himself, and reimburse the State for all its outlays in his behalf. In fact, up to December last, the Swedes had reimbursed to the State twenty-two hundred and thirty-eight dollars in labor and crops for the supplies advanced, and were indebted to the State seven thousand six hundred and eighty-seven dollars and thirteen cents, which is to be paid in money, crops, or labor.

The crops of the past season have more than realized the expectations of the farmers in the wilderness of their adopted home. Three thousand bushels of grain were threshed out, of which twelve hundred bushels were wheat, and five hundred bushels of potatoes harvested. Two hundred lots of one hundred acres each, or twenty thousand acres in all, are now covered and owned by the Swedes. On this large territory, partially redeemed from its primeval condition, two thousand acres of trees are felled, five hundred acres cleared, and eighty houses and seventeen barns built. The colony numbers two hundred and four men, one hundred and twelve women, and two hundred and thirty-seven children under twenty-one years of age; total, five hundred and fifty-three. This population does not include all the Swedes that have come to the State, but represents rather the headquarters of an agricultural community that will diffuse itself all over the State. About five hundred of these hardy workmen, mechanic and farmers, are employed in the State outside of New Sweden. Nearly all are contented and happy. Those who were not so have already left. Immigration from all directions has been stimulated by this enterprise inaugurated by Maine. The commissioner is confident that it has been the wisest measure ever inaugurated for peopling our occupied lands and creating a domain of tax-paying, producing citizens. The Swedes are proverbially honest, industrious, moral, religious, intelligent and law-abiding. The success of the enterprise, so far, seems to be most encouraging, and bids us look forward to the near future, when it will be self-sustaining and not dependent upon the fostering care of the State. At the present, the State must expect to extend further aid and assistance in granting lands.

Henry Wilson.

Miss Ream, of the St. Louis Democrat, has the following pen sketch of Senator Wilson, candidate for Vice President of the United States: "Let your readers imagine a man quite past the meridian of life, but with the years resting quietly upon his head. A tall, sinewy, square-shouldered man, with a hand as soft as velvet and as firm as friendship, and a figure admirably proportioned—there is in the pose of the head the suggestion of an ear always inclined to the plaints of suffering humanity. It is a round, shapely head, with the organs of benevolence and veneration largely developed. The broad forehead as clearly defines the quality of order and causality which are essential to practical results, and beneath the crown of brain we have soft brown eyes—pure wells of virtuous thought—which have the quality of carrying conviction to every heart. A large nose, in artist parlance of the general order, neither Roman or Grecian, gives character to the smooth, round cheeks, and the mouth—never was there a mouth more worthy of trust! The lips are mobile in the sense of generosity and tenderness, but are not less expressive of courage, self reliance and firmness. It is a mouth to be trusted forever. A decisive chin complete the oval of a face which is shaded by soft gray hair, worn long and thrown back from the temples. The face is smooth shaven, and a rascote complexion indicates the healthy old age of a well-spent life. The morning we saw him he had been in the Senate until four o'clock, and had taken no rest, but he looked as fresh and strong as a boy from his morning bath. This, too, is only the day but one after his nomination to the Vice Presidency, and he is as serene as a summer sky. His voice is round and full, with an organ depth of tone which insensitively commands attention. Stereotypes, to use a figurative expression, the truthful language of the age. Withal, my pen has failed of its purpose if it has not conveyed to your readers the idea of a great and good man."

Mr. Turner Experiments with Esquimaux Dogs.

Mr. Turner lives upon the upper Delaware. Last winter the river was frozen over for several months, and it would be a good thing to get a lot of dogs and hitch them to a sled, Esquimaux fashion, and then to glide up and down that river on the ice sometimes. So Mr. Turner collected six large and healthy dogs, and trained them for several days in his yard; and when he thought they understood their duties tolerably well he started one day for the river. He had gone about one hundred yards when the front dog happened to perceive a cat sitting upon a neighboring post-and-rail fence. The dog gave a yelp and started for that cat; the other dogs entered into the chase with enthusiasm, and Mr. Turner followed. The cat leaped from the fence and ran away on the other side. Turner's six dogs thereupon went through the rails like lightning; but Turner stayed on his own side, battered up a good deal, too, and discouraged. But he got his dogs out again, and was just about to make a fresh start, when a yellow dog came by in front of a wagon. Turner's dogs seemed anxious to become acquainted with that yellow dog, and they flew at him. The stranger was unsoberable. His voice was for war. He bristled up and flew at the Esquimaux. A fight ensued around Turner as a center. Every second or so some one of the dogs would put in a bite at random—as it were—and then another dog would make a snap at the yellow dog, and the yellow dog would suddenly draw back and Turner's leg would fly up and a mistake would occur in regard to Mr. Turner's calf. After a while all the dogs seemed to forget what the fight was about when it began, and the impression appeared to gain strength among them that Turner was responsible for it somehow; and before the affair was over the whole pack, including the yellow dog, which had become suddenly sympathetic and sociable, were snatching mouthfuls of meat out of Turner. He looks now as if he had been through every war since the Crusades, and he is the most disgusted man in the United States about Esquimaux and dogs. When he travels upon ice in the future he will skate.

Savings Banks.

The annual report of the Superintendent shows that the savings banks of the state have about one-third of their funds invested in bonds and mortgages, which is about a safe proportion. The safety of the proportion is not determined by the security of the investments, but by their availability in case of sudden call. No better security offers than land except bonds of the government, yet there is the inconvenient feature about mortgages that when the money is most needed by the banks there is the greatest difficulty in turning the mortgages into cash. It is only when panics prevail that these banks require to turn their securities into cash, and it is just then the mortgagee finds it most difficult to replace the money.

A noteworthy fact appears from the report. Although the deposits have largely increased, yet the investments in United States and State stocks have wholly ceased, and there has been a slight withdrawal. These stocks are the safest in the market, and will always command cash at the slightest possible falling-off in seasons of money pressure.

The withdrawal of funds, in however small degree, and the cessation of all further investment is fraught with danger. It shows that the banks are investing their funds latterly more for the sake of profit than security. The banks are perfectly safe, but the principle they have lately adopted is not a safe one, and if persisted in will have dangerous results. A law of the late legislature permitted these banks to invest in town bonds of another state. Those investments upon the standard of securities should be watched with jealous care, for the banks are of great benefit to the people and anything that tends to weaken them is to be deprecated.

College Commencements.

Our college commencements are in full blast, the old thing in college management being to call a commencement what is really an ending of college for the yearly crop of students. The crop is said to be above the average this year, and from West Point to Harvard the western world will receive an army of young men better fitted on the average to do its work than it did last year or the previous year.

We do not share that admiration of "self-made" men which leads to sneering at college learning and culture. We feel proud of the record which our self-made men make; but we esteem it one of the most praiseworthy elements of their greatness that it has been accomplished in spite of early disadvantages and lack of facilities. But of all the self-made men we have known there were none but in their proudest hours of triumph would give a good share of their fortunes if they could have had in early life the chances for culture these fledglings of the colleges have had, perhaps but half appreciating them.

Well, the world gladly welcomes these additions to its working force. They will be successful or not according to the spirit with which they approach the work before them. If they think a high position in their class at college gives them a guarantee of success, and then sit down and wait, it will never come. But it surely will, if they comprehend that their college life has been mainly useful in disciplining them for work, giving them the power of doing. To the college the word Commencement is a misnomer; but to the graduate it is just right, as work just commences with him as the college doors close upon him.

Sachem Seymour.

Ex-Gov. Seymour was installed as Grand Sachem of Tammany Society on Friday, and made a speech on political subjects. It is important as indicating the action to be taken by prominent Democrats. As Mr. Greeley has been very plain in his language regarding Mr. Seymour it may easily be seen that if anything of a personal nature would keep Democrats from the support of the Cincinnati nominee, Governor Seymour would be the last to come. The World has seemed to think in this direction, for it has revived and republished these old sayings of the Tribune.

But Gov. Seymour doesn't seem to remember, for he not only expresses the opinion that Baltimore will nominate Greeley, but pledges him his hearty support. When such men as Seymour forget and forgive words such as Greeley has written of him, there can be but little doubt there is a revolution in progress.

Every man can master a grief but that has it.

BY TELEGRAPH TO DAILY FREEMAN.

AN EXPRESS TRAIN THROWN FROM THE TRACK.

RUTLAND, Vt., June 29. The night express train over the Rutland division of the Vermont Central R. R., due in Rutland about midnight, met last night with a serious accident just north of Vergennes. While passing over a narrow culvert at the rate of 30 miles an hour, the engineer felt a jar. The locomotive, however, passed in safety, but no sooner had it passed than the culvert fell in, making a most complete wreck of the train, consisting of a baggage car, New York coach and sleeping car. Strange to say, but one person, a brakeman, was seriously injured, although all of the passengers were badly shaken up.

ACCIDENTAL SHOOTING ON THE STAGE.

WASHINGTON, June 29. During the performance of a farce at the Metropolitan Theatre last night, C. A. Brown, banjo player, shot a man named Keegan, a singer and dancer. The bullet passed through the chest of Keegan, who was standing on the stage, and he fell dead. The bullet had been fired from a revolver which Keegan had been holding, and he had been firing at a man named Keegan, who was standing on the stage, and he fell dead. The bullet had been fired from a revolver which Keegan had been holding, and he had been firing at a man named Keegan, who was standing on the stage, and he fell dead.

FATAL ACCIDENT—ROBBERS ON THE CAR.

St. Joseph, Mo., June 29. While workmen on the bridge were repairing the culvert on the new pier this P. M., a portion of the supports gave away, precipitating five men into the river, one of whom was drowned.

A man named Clymer, from Berks County, Pa., was robbed of seven thousand dollars today while asleep on the westward bound train on the Hamilton & St. Joseph R. R.

DEASTROUS FIRE.

BUFFALO, June 29. A fire occurred about seven o'clock this evening in the pork and provision establishment of Jacob Dool, No. 139 and 141 Michigan street, and #2 and #4 West Market street, completely gutting the entire concern. A four story brick building on Michigan street and a three story brick building on West Market street. Loss about $75,000; partially insured. One policy of $25,000 is said to have expired today at noon. One hundred and fifty hogs were roasted alive.

NATIONAL CAPITAL.

WASHINGTON, June 29. The report published yesterday that Gen. McKenzie and Lieut. Smith and his men were surprised and killed by Indians between Fort Belknap and Rockford, Texas, is not believed at the war department, as no information of such a disaster has been received by the department, although telegraphic communication is still open with Gen. Ager.

The acting Secretary of the Treasury has directed the Assistant Treasurer of New York to purchase $1,000,000 in bonds each Wednesday, and sell $1,000,000 in gold each Thursday during the month of July. The acting Secretary of the Treasury has called in $1,200,000 of the three per cent. temporary loan certificates, dated from August 1st to Sept. 1st 1872, as follows: $500,000 of each of the outstanding numbers between 3,557 and 3,549 inclusive; and $19,000 each of all outstanding numbers, between 4,151 and 4,335 inclusive. The interest will close August 31st 1872, on the above certificates.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

New York, June 29. A special telegram from Madrid announced that the resignation of Count Valmasela as Captain General of Cuba, has been at last accepted by the government. Valmasela will probably be succeeded by Gen. Carlos Arzobispo, and the present minister of war, Capt. General of Porto Rico, is also to be replaced by a man of similar sentiments.

The bakers held a meeting last night in which they determined to join the grand procession of the 1st of August, and took measures accordingly.

R. Range of the Workmen's Union states that the various trade unions in the city number 500,000 members. The bakers expect to strike at an early day for an increase of wages, and a reduction of hours.

The marble cutters continue to strike for 8 hours, and profess a determination to keep out till the demand is complied with. The long shermen on Monday will demand 50 cents per hour for all work after 6 P. M. The employees of the Continental Iron Works, Green Point, and Columbia Iron Works Brooklyn, have again struck. Yesterday the employees proposed to make them work ten hours.

The Employers' Central Committee are trying to devise some plan which will prove agreeable to both parties, and lead to the peaceful settlement of strikes. They expect to be able to issue their first tract to the workmen of the city to-morrow. The employees assert that they have no enmity toward their workmen, and that if the dispute was merely a question of profit, they would at once accede to their demands.

A remarkable case of infans corporis is before the Supreme Court, in which Joseph N. Pattison, a well-known pianist and musical composer, seeks to obtain possession of his child, child, Joseph Nelson Pattison, aged 14 years, and now held by the mother, Adelaide Pattison. The father claims that the child was stolen away from him, and was so confined to the house that he died. The mother appeared well enough disposed towards her husband, but is entirely under the influence of her mischief making friends.

The weather is again extremely hot to-day. The thermometer ranged from 94 to 100 in the shade. There were a number of cases of sunstroke.

The subscriptions for the monument to Gen. Thomas now reaches $4,265.

The annual police report shows an apparent falling off in the number of crimes of all sorts committed in 1871, from previous years.

Three noted scoundrels in Newark got a taste of Jersey justice yesterday to the extent of ten years each in the State Prison. These were Michael Carr, ex-prize fighter, James Finnegan and Michael Farley, the trio who brutally beat and robbed a Newark jewelry store keeper named Banister some four or five months ago.
